Overview

---

Manufacturers measure the size of your AC in BTUs—British Thermal Units—or in “tons.” This is the ability of an AC to cool an area in one hour. The higher the capacity of your AC in tons, the more refrigerant.

How much does a home AC unit recharge cost?

A home AC unit recharge has a typical cost range of $200 to $500, with a national average cost of $300. The total cost can vary based on several factors, including the type and size of the unit, the type of refrigerant it requires, and the cost of labor.

How much does a home AC cost?

A Home AC?

For car AC, the average recharge is $150–$300. A home’s central AC recharge averages $200–$700+ due to system size and complexity. Home units require specialized certification and accurate charge procedures.

How much does a window unit recharge cost?

The average cost range for a window unit recharge is between $250 and $400. If you’re shopping for a new AC system, regardless of the type, make sure your new system is one of the best air conditioner brands on the market.

How Does System Tonnage Affect Home AC Recharge Pricing?

How much does a window AC Freon recharge cost?

Window AC freon recharge costs are typically among the lowest because they contain a small charge weight but occasionally require the installation of service valves, which can increase the refill cost. The average cost range for a window unit recharge is between $250 and $400.

How much does a freon recharge cost?

This, of course, depends on how much dripped from the system during the leak. For each ton of capacity, your AC will need between two and four pounds of refrigerant. So, a one-ton AC will cost between $24 and $320 for the refrigerant alone plus the cost of labor. Age can play a role in Freon recharge costs for two reasons.

What is an AC recharge?

An AC recharge, or “charging an AC unit,” refers to refilling the refrigerant—the chemical coolant that absorbs and releases heat—to correct levels for optimal performance. If your air conditioner isn’t cooling properly, low refrigerant is a common culprit.
